Paying the Price for Comfort in New Movie Theaters

The American theater industry seems to have found an answer to its most basic question: Why should customers spend at least $12 to watch a movie at a theater, when a few months later they can rent the DVD for half the price and watch it in the comfort of their own homes?

The answer is that people are more than willing to pay the full price for an evening out, as long as the cinemas are nice places to visit. Older cinemas, built several decades ago, are gradually losing audiences, while the owners of fancy new cinemas are seeing their customers return in increasing numbers.

Stacey Greer, a cinema industry analyst, says that when Megaplex Inc. built six comfortable, new theaters in the Seattle area, they saw attendance rise more than 25% in just three years.
